Imperator Sails for New York.

Hamburg, June 11.—The Hamburg-American Company's new liner Imperator sailed today on her maiden voyage to New York. An enormous crowd congregated at the dock and along the waterfront and with loud cheers gave an enthusiastic "bon voyage" to the new "Goliath of the Ocean."

The big vessel, which is a triumph of marine architecture, steamed gracefully out of the harbor, carrying a complement of more than 4,000 passengers, among whom were many well known Americans. It is expected that under ordinary circumstances New York will be reached next Tuesday evening or early Wednesday morning.

When the Imperator ties up at her dock in North River next week New Yorkers will have an opportunity to inspect the largest vessel in the world. She has a gross tonnage of 50-000 (or nearly 5,000 tons greater than the Olympic) and is of the same general dimensions as the great Aquitania now nearing completion for the Cunard line. There are eleven decks on the liner. The promenade deck is a quarter of a mile long, so long in fact that a person standing at one end could not recognize a person at the other end. Rover steamboats of average size could sail lengthwise through one of the giant funnels of the Imperator.

One of the novel features of the big vessel is a roomy swimming-pool in a beautiful Pompeian hall. Among other luxuries with which the vessel has been fitted are a great entertainment hall two stories high, three electric elevators, a completely equipped gymnasium, a "cottage" cafe, a winter garden and a Ritz-Carlton restaurant. The main dining saloon is 300 feet long.

Charlton Must Face Trial in Italy.

Washington, June 10.—Porter Charlton must return to Italy to answer to the charge of having murdered his wife in June, 1910, at Lake Como. The supreme court so decided today.

Justice Lurton began delivering the court's opinion in the Charlton case as soon as the court assembled. He said first that no error had been committed in excluding evidence of insanity at the habeas corpus proceedings in the lower court and that no error was committed in making the formal demand for Charlton because it was not necessary at the extradition hearing.

SENATE INCREASES INDIAN APPROPRIATION

Washington, June 10.—The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs today voted out of committee the Indian appropriation bill carrying $11,288,792 an increase of $1,423,000 over the amount of the bill as it passed the House. The principal increases are $80,000 for support of day and industrial schools, $25,000 for suppression of the liquor traffic, $50,000 expenses of joint commission to investigate the entire Indian service, $12,000 for an accounting system and $2,500 increase of salary of the commissioner of Indian Affairs.

The increases for Oklahoma are $25,000 for settling land suits, $10,000 for completing appraisal of coal and asphalt lands of the Choctaws and Chickasaws and $500 for a monument to Green McCurtain, late Chief of the Choctaws.

The senate bill further provides for the making a per capita payment of $100 to the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, the total per capita payment will be $2,700,000. This payment will be made out of the sale of unallotted lands and will still leave a large margin of funds undisturbed.

The amendment was adopted, although opposed in the committee by Senator John Sharp Williams and Representative Harrison of Mississippi, who do not want any distribution of the Choctaw funds until the question of the enrollment of Mississippi Choctaws is settled. A per capita payment of $15 is authorized also for the Cherokees.

The senate committee also included in the bill a modified form of the Gore amendment, which is directed against persons making individual contracts with the Indians for the recovery of lands or money. The Gore amendment would have prevented the Indians making any kind of contracts and prescribed a penalty for violation of the provision. The senate committee left out the penalty and would prohibit the making of only such individual contracts as would affect tribal funds.

The senate amendment reads: "No contract made with any Indian where such contract relates to the tribal funds or property in the hands of the United States, shall be valid, nor shall any payment for services rendered in relation thereto be made unless the consent of the United States has previously been given."

World's Y. M. C. A. Conference.

Edinburgh, June 11.—The opening in Edinburgh today of the quadrennial conference of the World's Alliance of Young Men's Christian Associations afforded a sight that would have gladdened the eyes of the late Sir George Williams, were that staunch Christian worker alive today to view the striking evidences of the marvelous growth of the organization of which he was the founder.

At the opening of the conference the call of the roll was answered by delegates representing all parts of the civilized world. Not only were Great Britain, the United States, Canada and Australia well represented, but virtually all of the countries of Europe, to gether with South Africa, the South American republic of Brazil and the Asiatic countries of Japan, China, India, Korea and Ceylon had delegates on hand.

The conference will continue its sessions through the remainder of this week. Many eminent speakers are on the program and there will be discussions covering every phase of the great work that is being carried on by the World Alliance. Delegates will present to the conference reports showing the growth and progress of the Y. M. C. A. in their respective countries. These reports will show that the organization now numbers nearly 9,000 branches throughout the world, of which nearly one-fourth are in the United States and Canada.

IRISH HOME RULE BILL PASSED AGAIN

London, June 10.—The House of Commons tonight passed the second reading of the home rule for Ireland bill without division, an amendment by Mr. Balfour for the rejection of the measure having been previously defeated by a vote of 368 to 279.

The announcement of the figures was received with cheering by Liberals and Nationalists.

The debate was marked by fiery declarations of the opposition speakers, who predicted the imposition of home rule would result in civil war in Ireland. Sir Edward Carson, the Irish Unionist leader, said:

"For my part I will continue to support the Ulstermen and will take full responsibility for their resistance. You may seize their arms or send troops, but you will not settle the Irish question. You know that you are crowing about peace when there is no peace and you will, fail in your object."

Lord Charles Beresford declared: "If the government sends troops to Ireland I shall offer my services, poor as they may be, and help my fellow countrymen."

John E. Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, said Sir Edward Carson had taken upon himself a grave responsibility and did not represent Ulster's opinion. The Nationalists were willing to make any concessions "but" added Mr. Redmond, "twenty-four counties will not allow themselves to be intimidated by four."

Andrew Bonar Law, opposition leader, said that if there were a bargain between the government and the Nationalists, the House ought to know. Mr. Redmond denied the existence of a bargain and Premier Asquith supported the denial.

Mr. Law continued: "The government is compelling the whole Unionist party to take the side of Ulster. If the government forces the bill through under present conditions it will be a self-constituted revolutionary committee and Ulster can only meet revolution by counter-revolution."

The bill now enters the suggestive stage before its inevitable rejection by the Lords.

Sir Edward Carson, after the passage of the bill, said the Irish Unionist members would refuse to take part in any further discussion because their suggestions would certainly be rejected. Those members in a body will tour the principal cities in England and Scotland, holding meetings to protest against the bill.

The Nationalists are downhearted at the possibility that the government will not last for the third passage of the bill necessary to make it a law.

American Drinks for London Charity.

London, June 11.—There was a great outpouring of London society today for the opening of the Noah's Ark Fair in Albert Hall. The fair, which will continue two days, is given in aid of a London hospital. Queen Alexandra is the patron of the fair and the Duchess of Marlborough, the Countess of Lonsdale and a number of other women in the highest ranks of the nobility are among the members of the committee.

The delighted throngs that wandered through the aisles of the big hall at the opening this afternoon afforded evidence that the efforts of the promoters to make the fair one of the "biggest and best" ever given in the metropolis had met with success. Novel and attractive features were to be encountered at every turn. Not the least attractive was the "American bar," where so-called American mixed drinks were dispensed to the thirsty. Lord Lonsdale presided as chief barkeeper and was assisted in making up the beverages by Prince Paul of Servia, Count Elsen and Prince Obelski.

Gamblers are generally superstitious with regard to numbers. At Monte Carlo many players lay their stake on the number of their cloak room tickets. The date of a birthday, the sum total of the number on a watch, and the figures on the top coin of a pile are also said to be regarded as lucky by many players, and the clergyman of the English church at Monte Carlo at one time never gave out any hymn under No. 36, as he discovered that some of his congregation had made a practice of noting down the numbers with a view to backing the mat roulette.—Kansas City Journal.

WHEN IS WOMAN MOST BEAUTIFUL?

At what age is a woman most beautiful?

This question is now the subject of a somewhat spirited discussion in Parisian art circles. M. Ferdinand Humbert, the head of the school of fine arts, owns to two ideals. As an artist his favorite feminine type is between the ages of 18 and 25—the time of "radiant youth." As a mere man, he considers that women of from 25 to 35 years old are the most fascinating and charming.

The veteran painter, Harpignies, is not so generous, for he sets the time of beauty at from 16 to 20 years—the age of youthful simplicity unmarred by the cares and anxieties which years bring in their train. M. Gabriel Ferrer, on the other hand, accords to beauty a lengthy reign. He considers the woman of today is beautiful from the age of 25 to 40, for she has become mistress of the art of how to make the best of herself with the help of skilled dressmakers and modistes. M. Barthelome, the famous sculptor of the beautiful parthenon statues, sets the time of beauty at between the ages of 18 and 25, but with the reservation that there is no true beauty without goodness, and that beauty of face and form, without beauty of soul, has no appeal to him.

Jean Boucher, another famous sculptor, says that woman is at her best between the ages of 16 and 30, though from youth to old age she is adorable! What would appear to be the most comforting opinion of all, however, from the point of view of the fair sex, is that expressed by the famous portrait painter, Francois Flaminge. "A woman's greatest beauty may dawn at any time between the ages of 15 and 50," he says. "Let every man form his own opinion, according to individual taste, as to which of these years a woman is at her best."

The lay sermon on judging others taken from Sunday's Dallas News and reproduced in Tuesday's Ada News contains enough food for thought to last one a lifetime, if he would only thoroughly digest it. Somehow every man is inclined to set himself up as a judge of the motives of others as well as of his own. It being beyond his power to read the thoughts and purposes of his fellows, his judgment is oftener wrong than right. Many towns have suffered and some have indeed been left as villages when they might have been centers of trade, simply because of wrong judgment citizens passed on one another. No matter how pure and patriotic a man's motives may be in dealing with public questions, some are always ready to question his motive and ask where his graft is coming from. This is discouraging to the most patient and forbearing and often causes the men of a community who are most capable of making it a real city to give up the fight in disgust and leave it to the carping critics who have been biting and barking at their heels like so many fine pups. Give your neighbor the benefit of the doubt, and do not question his motives when he is trying to help the town. His methods may be different from the ones you would employ, but perhaps he knows more about it than you do. Lay aside your suspicions and help boost.

A DESERVED TRIBUTE.

The unveiling of the memorial to Col. Richard Owen at Indianapolis, Ind., by men to whom he had shown kindness when the misfortune of war had made them prisoners in his keeping, is a most striking proof of the fact that the spirit of forgiveness and reconciliation between the two sections is indeed alive.

In the early part of the civil war Col. Owen was commanding of the military prison at Indianapolis where several thousand Confederate Soldiers were confined. Col. Owen was a humane man and because he had these men in his power he sought to make their lot as bearable as possible, instead of heaping all possible indignities on their heads as was too often the case with other and more brutal prison keepers. The prisoners were well cared for while he had charge and were granted all the privileges circumstances and safety would permit. However, Col. Owen's methods did not suit the skulkers in the rear, who had never faced these brave men on the field of battle, and through their maneuvering he was replaced with a man who seemed to enjoy the sufferings of his helpless prisoners. Later Col. Owen was captured by a Confederate force, but in recognition of his treatment of his prisoners, he was given his liberty unconditionally.

He has now been dead many years, but it is foreign to southern nature to forget and fail to show proper gratitude for favors shown, and some years ago S. A. Cunningham of Nashville, Tenn., editor of the Confederate Veteran, and who had been held a prisoner during the time of Col. Owen conceived the idea of erecting a suitable memorial to his memory, said memorial to be paid for by subscriptions from former Confederate soldiers and their friends in the south. A considerable sum was raised and Mr. Cunningham guaranteed the remaining funds from his own pocket.

This case has few parallels in history. The monument may be considered a landmark in the history of this nation. To the passerby it will recall the gratitude of men who feared no foe, a tribute to all the more striking on that account showing how tender the brave can be, and how well Southern soldiers remember. It will appeal to the best nature of every man and awaken in his breast a responsive feeling.

It is understood that Walt Mason, the jolly editor of the Emporia Gazette, is vigorously denying the authorship of this jingle which is going the rounds of the Kansas press: "A funny old bird is the pelican; his bill can hold more than his belican. He can take in his beak enough food for a week, but we don't understand how the helican."

SUCCESSFUL OPENING

OF RUSH STOCK CO.

The opening night of the Rush Stock Co. at the Airdome Tuesday evening was a very successful affair. A good sized audience greeted the players and all enjoyed the occasion to an extent that insures a good crowd every evening this week.

The Rush company carries twelve people and every one is a specialist in his or her particular line. In the opening number, "Even to the Third and Fourth Generations," Mr. Rush as David Torrence, Ernest Faulhaber as Harold Reynolds, Miss Lillian Gardner as Shiela Torrence and Miss Mary Will as Ruth performed their parts exceptionally well.

The play for this evening will be a comedy, "As God Wills."

VERMONT GOVERNOR

SERVED OVER 18 YEARS

To the Editor of the Evening News.

Dear Sir:—In your issue of June 7th, Dr. E. A. McMillan in his "Interesting Facts About the Chickasaws" says of Cyrus Harris. "He was the first governor elected after the separation from the Choctaws in 1855 and on twelve successive elections his people chose him their leader, a record far surpassing that of John Ross or any other executive of an Indian tribe or an American commonwealth or state."

I wish to say that my great, great, grandfather, Thomas Chittenden, one of the founders of the state of Vermont was elected the first governor of the state and served as governor 18 years, 5 months and 24 days, dying in office, Aug. 25th, 1797, honored and beloved by his fellow citizens, as the grand monument they erected to his memory testifies. I think it well to hold up before the rising generation the examples of such noble men, who not having made a business of seeking office, but rather of serving the people faithfully when called upon, have been the people's choice for the longest terms of the most exalted offices in our government.

One of the greatest curses of the present day is the miserable scramble for every office, and the future as the past has done, will tell the story that he who answering to the people's call, serves them faithfully will have the most lasting honors.

NOTHING BUT THE BEST

VITAGRAPH—

"THE TRANSITION"

The turning point in our lives are brought about in strange and unaccountable ways. In this dramatic story of the moonshine regions, we will see how a daughter of a desperate moonshiner was saved from environments from which there seem to be no escape.

BIOGRAPH BURLESQUE COMEDY

"An Uncle Tom's Cabin Troupe"

"A LESSON TO MASHERS"

FARCE COMEDY

Two excellent pictures at the Majestic this evening. The first is "The Transition." It is an intensely dramatic story of the regions where moonshiners flourish, and shows how the daughter of a moonshiner escapes from her environment. "An Uncle Tom's Cabin Troupe" is a rich burlesque on that style of entertainment. The last on the program will be "A Lesson to Mashers."

The program at the De Sota this evening will be a two-reeler featuring Anna Little, J. B. Sherry, "Shorty" and Dick Stanton. It is a society-military subject of the sensational order, showing how a soldier sacrificed the life of the girl he loved for the flag of his country. The star performers in this great drama are the ones who produced A Southern Cinderella, a fact that guarantees this one to be a gem.

John Beard returned Tuesday from a visit to his old stamping ground in Kansas. He had not been in that immediate section in twenty years and was greatly impressed with the many signs of prosperity. In the first place the roads are kept in perfect condition, and with their fine rigs, autos, phone service and rural mail facilities, the farmers have all the advantages to be found in a large city while at the same time escaping many of its drawbacks. They have also planted thousands of trees and the timber itself is becoming something of an item in places where once was nothing but the bald prairie. While at Salina he met M. D. Steiner's family. He states that Mrs. Steiner has met with great success in selling the ice card on which she received a patent, and that she has now patented an improved form which is the best thing in the line ever manufactured.

If the News falls a trifle short this afternoon it will be the fault of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Ray, who entertained Otis Weaver and the reporter at their hospitable home in the south suburbs of the city today for dinner. The dinner was a most magnificent one and after doing ample justice to everything on the table the reporter has felt rather too lazy to do much hustling since.

Featuring Anna Little, J. B. Sherry, "Shorty", and Dick Stanton

A sensational dramatic society-military subject showing how a soldier sacrificed the life of the girl he loved for the flag of his country.

ANNA LITTLE

In portraying the role of the Indian maiden demonstrates again her already recognized ability as a real star.

J. B. SHERRY

The expert actor who took the part of the Colonel in "A Southern Cinderella," and "The Pride of the South" does justice to the same role in this picture. To gaze upon him attired in the full uniform of Colonel of the U. S. Army is a sight worth while.

"SHORTY"

The little actor who works so fast you can hardly keep up with him, assumes an important part in the above picture.

DICK STANTON

The hero in "A Southern Cinderella" and one of the K-B Company's most daring riders, takes the lead in tonight's feature. Mr. Stanton makes a fall from a bareback horse going at breakneck speed tonight that is a feature alone worth seeing. PAUL ALLEN HURT

AT COALGATE

Tuesday at Coalgate Paul Allen of Ada suffered a painful accident by being caught between the wheel and bed of a dray. He and others were transporting the Moose paraphalia to the lodge room. He was sitting on the float bed and when a sudden turn was made at a corner he slipped off but held on with his hands. In stopping the team the driver swung the wheel around pinning Mr. Allen between it and the bed. He received prompt attention and was able to return with the party this morning. It is not thought that his injuries will prove at all serious.

In Honor of Mrs. W. N. Mays.

Worthy of first rank among the many beautiful and brilliant entertainments of the spring season, was the reception last Friday afternoon given by Mrs. E. K. Higgins to compliment her attractive sister, Mrs. W. N. Mays of Ada, Okla.

The spacious apartments of this always popular hostess were lavishly decorated with quantities gift flowers. The pink note predominated in every detail. In the library where the hostess and honoree received their guests, pink peonies and other spring flowers were used in greatest profusion.

From a bower of pink roses, Miss Kathleen Moore served a refreshing fruit punch throughout the afternoon.

Rook was the diversion chosen for the entertainment of the guests. Mrs. W. A. Young presided at the favor table. The score cards were Dutch figures in water colors.

Small tables were arranged in the dining room, where mantel and cabinets were banked with pink roses and sweet peas ranging from the deepest to the palest shades of pink which made an effective background for the handsome gowns of the guests. After the game the tables were covered with handsome lace pieces, from which a most tempting salad course was served. A distinctive and beautiful feature of the entertainment and in which the color note of pink was again emphasized, was the dainty green candy baskets, decorated with pink roses piled high with pink ice, and which made the central ornament for each table and from which the ice was served by those assisting the hostess.

The out of town guests were: Mrs. Geo. T. McCall of Huntington, Mrs. Moore Vicksburg, Miss, Miss Coonce of Nashville, and Miss Grisson of Newbern.

Mrs. Mays was beautifully gowned in Neapolitan blue Charmeuse satin with an overdress of black net embroidered in rhine stones and finished with a Dresden girdle. Mrs. Higgins wore a most becoming gown of white embroidered net over white satin.—McKenzie (Tenn.) Banner.

The Daughter of David Kerr

By
Harry King Tootle

Illustrations by Ray Walters

(Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl who has spent most of her life at school, arrives at her father's home in Belmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town and is anxious to prevent his daughter learning of his real character.

CHAPTER II—Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper.

CHAPTER III—Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society and promises to help him but through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft.

CHAPTER IV—Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Gilberts. It appears they are on intimate terms and have met previously in a touring party in Europe.

CHAPTER V—Gloria tells Wright on his failure to keep an engagement to meet her in Paris. He explains that the death of his mother prevented his going to Paris.

CHAPTER VI—The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the furnishing of the Kerr home.

CHAPTER VII—One society bud who refused to meet Gloria is forced to do so when her father is made to feel Kerr's power.

CHAPTER VIII—Wright begins his fight against the proposed franchise in the columns of his paper, the Belmont News.

"I'm the Cheerful Giver," said Kerr with a humorous grimace which pretended to show that the donation was not so cheerfully parted with.

"I'm not so cheerful, but I was a giver," added Dr. Hayes.

"I told Judge Gilbert to lock the safe, that I knew you would be after money," Kerr continued.

"Highway robbers, I call them," was Dr. Hayes' testimony this time.

"A bad reputation they've given us, Judge Gilbert," laughed Gloria, "and we don't deserve it, indeed we don't."

Kerr walked into the private office and Gilbert, catching his eye, followed him. The boss said something; Gilbert looked at the women and then nodded his head in assent. Dr. Hayes, also catching the boss' eye, strolled away from the group casually as the judge rejoined it. A word with him was all that Kerr required. The master of Locust Lawn was setting the stage with an eye that overlooked no detail. There was too much at stake for him to neglect to interpolate anything effective which chance might throw in his way.

As the two men walked back into the library, Mrs. Hayes was saying:

"Dr. Hayes and I have had quite an argument, and here are the lawyers, Gloria, who can settle the question for us. Can a woman steal from her husband, Mr. Kendall?"

Kendall knitted his brows in perplexity. "Really, Mrs. Hayes, that is a question I shall have to take under advisement."

"But a man can steal from his wife," Gloria put in. There was a general laugh at this which she did not relish. "I'm talking seriously. If it weren't so, we mightn't be here begging money."

"So you are after money," said Judge Gilbert lightly. "Then you must tell me why I should contribute to keep men from stealing from their wives, you who have no one to steal from you."

Gloria was not to be diverted from what she had to say. These men to whom she was talking represented to her what was best in Belmont, what was best in manhood. She wished them to see the truth as she saw it.

"It isn't that kind of stealing," she went on; "it's worse than that. Till I went with Mrs. Hayes to visit the mission I had no idea of the degradation and misery in a town even like Belmont. When I say men steal from their wives I mean they take money they should spend on their families and spend it for whisky and gambling."

"I think it's a shame that such men as you, Judge Gilbert, and you, Dr. Hayes, and you, Father, of all persons, permit such things to happen here in Belmont. I wish I were a man!"

"You can't keep people from spending their money," said Kerr, as he looked at his watch.

Dr. Hayes caught the slight nod the boss gave, and said something to his wife. Then, interrupting the discussion, he said to Gloria:

"I'm already on the list of cheerful givers, Miss Kerr, and I'm going to ask if you'll let me carry off Mrs. Hayes for half an hour or so."

"But I'm only assisting her," she replied in surprise.

"You can tell Judge Gilbert about it even better than she can. I know how it is when married ladies come to my office and when unmarried ladies come."

"Yes," laughed his wife, "he keeps me poor, contributing to things that are none of our business just because pretty girls come in and he can't refuse them. Dr. Hayes says we won't be long, Gloria. You don't mind, do you?"

"Of course not. Where shall I meet you?"

"We'll come back here."

Gloria turned from saying goodby to Mrs. Hayes to find only her father in the room with her. Kendall and Judge Gilbert had withdrawn to the latter's private office.

"Where's Joe Wright been keeping himself?" asked Kerr suddenly.

The girl did not betray the slightest interest in the question. She took her time about answering, and when she spoke it was in the most nonchalant manner.

"Mr. Wright? Oh, he's in Belmont."

"You don't go with him like you used to. He ain't been to Locust Lawn once."

"He says he's busy when I see him. I meet him occasionally."

"I thought you and him was good friends."

"Oh, we are."

Although she answered his questions in an off-hand manner, her father was not deceived. From what he had been told and also from what he had observed, he felt that his daughter had a genuine regard for the owner of the Belmont News. Of its depth he could not decide.

"He ain't been near you for a long time."

"I'm not bothering about him. I'm not bothering particularly about anyone."

The girl was glad that at this moment Judge Gilbert came from his private office. Her father was questioning her about matters she preferred to keep to herself.

"If Miss Gloria can spare you, Mr. Kerr," said the judge, "Mr. Kendall would like to see you in my office. I've come back to be persuaded that I ought to join the cheerful givers."

"I'll tell Kendall, Gloria, that he's got to join the lodge," were Kerr's parting words as he went into the inner office.

Remembering that Miss Kerr had not been given the chance to explain her visit fully, Judge Gilbert took a chair beside her and said:

"Now, I'm at your service, prepared to believe the most terrible things about our fair Belmont."

"Where you talk like that, Judge Gilbert, I'm afraid you're laughing at me."

Of late Gloria's seriousness had far outweighed her old mood of joyousness, and she now insisted on being taken seriously.

"You've lectured me so long for being shocked at what I've found that I'm afraid to say any more."

Judge Gilbert was seeking in his mind for some plausible reason to advance which would be sufficient to remove Gloria from the work she had undertaken, when Williams entered.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said the secretary, "but Mr. Wright is here."

"Mr. Wright," exclaimed Gloria. She almost rose from her seat, but feeling the eyes of the lawyer upon her, sank back again and tried to appear quite at her ease.

"Tell him I'll see him in a minute."

"Yes, sir."

Williams went out, and left Gloria feeling as if she were on the stand, a witness in her own defense. She was provoked because she knew the attorney had heard her exclamation. Something within her made her wish to rush away. But this wish in an instant gave place to one more ardent. She would see him, speak to him, learn the truth from his own lips if he were man enough to speak, and then go away forever. Deep down in her heart, however, she heard a whisper out of the leaves of their "birthday book," words he had whispered:

Spring in the hills, Beloved,
On the side of a meadowed slope;
And love in our hearts, Beloved,
Love and Spring and Hope.

CHAPTER XIII.

Wright had no means of knowing what it was Judge Gilbert had to propose to him, but he felt certain that it had some connection with his newspaper and with the campaign now ending in a lurid blaze of political pyrotechnics. Gloria Kerr was the last person he would have thought of meeting in Gilbert's office. He had promised himself that after the election, no matter whether it went his way or not, he would see her and make his excuses for not having had the time to be with her as he had wished. He would also begin to look about for a purchaser for the News. He hoped he would have no difficulty in getting Gloria to leave Belmont. Then for the new life with her where they could be ever together, one in heart and hope and happiness.

When Williams told Wright that Judge Gilbert was ready to see him, he opened the door and saw the lawyer advancing to meet him with extended hand. The adviser of Belmont corporations knew the value of a handshake and a cordial greeting. It made a visit to his office take on the air of a social affair.

"I'm so glad you came," he said to the editor, shaking hands heartily.

"I came as soon as I could," Wright was not going to be outdone, and therefore used his most genial tone, although the shaking hands on his side was a perfunctory performance.

He knew Judge Gilbert's real attitude, and undue cordiality under the circumstances savored too much of the Greeks bearing gifts.

"Miss Kerr and I have just been speaking of you."

"What!" exclaimed Wright. Looking past the judge, for the first time he saw Gloria. At mention of her name the girl rose from her chair. She really thought she merely wanted to speak to him, once more look into his eyes, and then take her departure.

At sight of her, Wright stepped forward and said, "How do you do, Miss Kerr? It's a great pleasure to see you. I certainly did not expect to find you here."

They shook hands in rather a constrained manner, Gilbert watching them closely the while.

"Naturally not," she replied. "I came to see Judge Gilbert on a matter of business and am just leaving."

Despite herself she could not help adding, "My friends find me most of the time at Locust Lawn."

Something in her manner brought the lawyer at once into the conversation with a turning of the subject.

"I couldn't tell you very well over the phone what I wanted," he explained to Wright. "It'll be a little while before I can talk to you. I need a few minutes more to ascertain fully the wishes of my clients."

The conversation was so business-like that Gloria forced herself to say: "I must be going. Please don't let me keep you from your work."

But at this Gilbert held up his hand appealingly and begged, "Please don't go. I want you to do me a favor. Wait for Mrs. Hayes. Until I've finished this conference, won't you be so good as to act as hostess here and entertain Mr. Wright?"

"Really, Judge Gilbert, I—"

"I'm sure Mr. Wright wishes it." He interrupted her because he did not know what she might say, and he knew his remark would bring from the newspaper man a request that she remain.

"I wouldn't have Miss Wright make a martyr of herself," Wright said with quiet dignity, "but if she would be so kind—"

"Didn't I tell you," the judge said to the girl, "Not a word. You must take my place until I return. If you'll pardon me, I'll be with you again in just a few minutes."

There was no time for them to protest. He slipped into the office where Kendall and Kerr were closeted, and closed the door quietly after him.

The situation was not without its embarrassment. Taking into consideration everything which had happened in the last month, there was little wonder that each felt constrained. In addition to that, Gloria felt as if she had just been figuratively thrown at his head. To a high-spirited girl this in itself was mortifying. They sat without a word until the silence became painful. Wright was desperate. Here was the one woman in all the world, and he was afraid to open his mouth. At last he mustered sufficient courage to remark:

"Beautiful spring weather we're having."

GRAY FADED HAIR, OR BEAUTIFUL, DARK, ATTRACTIVE—CHOOSE, MADAM!

SAYS SAGE TEA MIXED WITH SULPHUR RESTORES NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE.

Gray, faded hair turned beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight, is a reality, if you'll take the trouble to mix sage tea and sulphur, but what's the use, you get a large bottle of the ready-to-use tonic, called

"Wyeth's" are sold annually, says a Remedy at drug stores here for about 50 cents. Millions of bottles of "Wyeth's" are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

You just dampen a sponge or soft bush with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after just one application the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth, gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with the Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be amazed at your youthful appearance and the real beauty and healthy condition of your hair within a few days. Inquiry at drug stores here shows that they all sell lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and the folks using it are enthusiastic. Gwin & Mays Drug Co., Ada, Okla. adv.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION WILL MEET JUNE 16

McAlester, Ok., June 11.—Beginning Monday, June 16th, continuing four days, the seventh annual convention of Oklahoma Christian Endeavor Union will be in session in Oklahoma City. Christian Endeavor has an active membership in Oklahoma of about seven thousand young people, besides a large number of honorary members among the older people. One thousand delegates are expected to register, including the local young people. Prominent religious workers will conduct the sessions, including Karl Lahman of Boston, inter-state field secretary, considered the most efficient organizer in America in young people's religious work. Other prominent speakers are Rev. Sheldbourne, of Dallas, Tex., and C. H. Fenstermacher, of Tulsa, well known

Stork and Cupid Cunning Plotters

Many a New Home will Have a Little Sunbeam to Brighten it.

There is usually a certain degree of dread in every woman's mind as to the probable pain, distress and danger of childbirth. But, thanks to a most remarkable remedy known as Mother's Friend, all fear is banished and the period is one of unbounded, joyful anticipation.

Mother's Friend is used externally. It is a most penetrating application, makes the muscles of the stomach and abdomen pliant so they expand easily and naturally without pain, without distress and without any of those peculiar symptoms that tend to weaken and distress the mother. Thus Cupid and the prospective mother. Thus Cupid and the stork are held up to veneration; they are rated as cunning plotters to herald the coming of a little sunbeam to gladden the hearts and brighten the homes of a host of happy families.

There are thousands of women who have used Mother's Friend, and thus know from experience that it is one of our greatest contributions to healthy, happy motherhood. It is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle, and is especially recommended as a preventive of caking breasts and all other such distresses.

Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 131 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their very valuable book to expectant mothers. Get a bottle of Mother's Friend to-day.

throughout the state in Y. M. C. A. circles and in the boys' work.

The first day will be devoted mostly to business. General order of the sessions for other three days will be: Morning: Quiet Hour Service, Song Service, Workers' Conferences, Address. Afternoon: Son Service, Addresses on various branches of Religious work. Evening: Prayer service, Song Service, Addresses. Other leading features: Pipe Organ Recital, each day, Banquet Wednesday night, Stereopticon Lectures, Afternoon of Recreation in Parks and viewing the city.

Principal railroads will make a special rate of one and one-third fare for round trip. Delegates will be entertained free, including lodging and breakfast.
